Dear Ms. Ward,

This letter confirms the schedule and figures for your fourth-quarter estimated tax payment and the year-end items we discussed. As in prior years, I have reconciled the fleet books from the QuickBooks mirror against the invoicing tracker and the household ledger you maintain.

1. Q4 estimated tax

Client	Ashley Ward
Entity	Ward Taxi & Car Service LLC
Payment due	January 15, 2027
Estimated amount	$9,400
Method	Electronic federal payment
Prepared by	Max Delano, CPA

The estimated amount of $9,400 reflects fiscal year 2025 net income near $165,000 and the personal take-home near $120,000, with the church tithe and standard deductions applied. Please confirm the payment before the January 15, 2027 deadline.

2. Year-end items

- The fleet loan interest on the three Pacifica vans is deductible and recorded.
- Vehicle maintenance and fuel are categorized in the fleet ledger X01 and X06.
- The SEP IRA contribution for the year is within the conservative target.
- The medical transport modification outlay of $8,000 is a capital item, not an expense.

3. AHCA planning note

On the medical transport initiative, the $8,000 modification cost for the two vans is treated as a capital improvement and depreciated, not expensed in a single year. The break-even projection of fourteen months in your model X05 is reasonable given the incremental revenue assumptions. We will revisit the tax treatment once the AHCA application is submitted on January 25, 2027.

4. Recommendations

- Make the Q4 estimated payment on or before January 15, 2027.
- Keep the modification invoices for the capital schedule.
- Continue the monthly QuickBooks reconciliation on the first of each month.
- Schedule the year-end review call through Calendly before April filing season.

5. Closing

Please call or email with any questions. I will prepare the annual return after the January filings settle. As always, I appreciate the clear records you keep, which make this work straightforward.

Sincerely,

Max Delano, CPA
Miami, FL

Appendix A: estimated tax worksheet

The worksheet below supports the Q4 estimated payment. Figures reconcile with the annual report P02 and the household budget X04. The tithe is treated as a charitable contribution.

Line	Amount
Business net income FY2025	$165,000
Personal take-home	$120,000
Charitable contribution, tithe	$12,000
SEP IRA contribution	Within target
Q4 estimated payment due	$9,400

Appendix B: filing calendar

- Q4 estimated tax payment due January 15, 2027.
- AHCA application submission target January 25, 2027.
- Annual return prepared after the January filings settle.
- Year-end review call scheduled through Calendly.

Appendix C: record-keeping notes

The clear monthly reconciliation Ashley Ward maintains in QuickBooks and the household ledger makes the year-end work straightforward. Keep the modification invoices for the capital schedule, and retain the fuel and maintenance records in X06 and X03. Questions route to Max Delano by phone or email.

Appendix D: engagement terms

This engagement covers quarterly estimated tax support, the annual business and personal return, and year-end planning. The annual fee is held near $1,800. Work is performed from the records the client maintains in QuickBooks and the household ledger, reconciled monthly.

Service	Cadence	Note
Estimated tax support	Quarterly	Q4 due January 15, 2027
Annual return	Yearly	After January filings settle
Year-end planning	Yearly	Includes AHCA capital treatment
Books reconciliation	Monthly	Client maintained, CPA reviewed

Appendix E: AHCA capital note

For planning, the $8,000 van modification outlay is a capital improvement, depreciated rather than expensed in a single year. The fourteen-month operating break-even in model X05 is a separate measure from the tax depreciation schedule. Both are reviewed once the application is submitted on January 25, 2027. The CPA will confirm the depreciation method on the annual return.
