

Care Notes for Linda

Medication, appointments, and Sunday meals

A private helper sheet. Jane manages her mother Linda's refills, appointments, and Sunday meals.

Medications

Linda manages type 2 diabetes and mild high blood pressure with daily medication and diet. The goal this year is to bring the A1C down from 7.1 with steady habits and lighter Sunday cooking.

Medication	Purpose	How taken
Metformin	Type 2 diabetes	With meals, daily
Lisinopril	Mild high blood pressure	Once daily, morning

Appointments and refills

- Schedule the next primary care follow up at the family health clinic and confirm by phone.
- Confirm both refills before they run low; order the next fill about one week ahead.
- Keep a running note of the last reading and any change the doctor recommends.
- Bring the medication list to every visit so nothing is missed.

Task	Cadence	Next step
Primary care follow up	Every few months	Book the next visit and add it to the calendar
Metformin refill	Monthly	Reorder one week before it runs out
Lisinopril refill	Monthly	Reorder with the metformin to keep one trip
Blood pressure check	Weekly at home	Log the reading and watch the trend

Cooking for Linda

Sunday dinner at Linda's is a fixed point. The cooking leans on Southern comfort food while watching the sugar and the carbohydrates, since the A1C needs to come down. Lighter fruit stands in for dessert most weeks, and the pound cake comes out for birthdays and holidays.

- Roast chicken with green beans and a small side salad.
- Baked fish with collard greens and roasted okra.
- Lean pork with sauteed greens and summer squash.
- Turkey and vegetable soup with one slice of cornbread.

What to watch for

- Steady energy and no dizzy spells after meals or medication.
- Readings trending down toward the A1C goal, not spiking.
- Any new symptom or side effect, noted and raised at the next visit.
- Enough refills on hand so a weekend never runs the supply out.

Glucose friendly swaps

Small changes to the Sunday plate keep the comfort food familiar while easing the sugar and the carbohydrates. The point is steady, not strict, so the meal still feels like Sunday.

- Swap white rice for cauliflower rice or a smaller portion of brown.
- Trade the sweet tea for unsweet with a slice of lemon.
- Lean on greens, beans, and roasted vegetables to fill the plate.
- Keep dessert to fruit most weeks and save the baking for the holidays.

Watch the sugar and carbohydrates when cooking Sunday dinner. Small swaps add up over a year.
