247 Euclid Avenue, Apt 2, Syracuse, NY 13210 | (315) 555-0166 | grace.hatfield@greenridertech.co

This statement summarizes employment and total income for the year. Grace is a staff attorney at Keystone Legal Aid, a nonprofit serving rural poverty and civil rights clients across the region. She took the position straight out of law school, turning down a private firm offer that would have paid roughly thirty thousand dollars more, because the work matters more to her than the salary.

Notes on the Year

The salary is supplemented by a small quilting business that brings in roughly five thousand dollars a year, for a combined income near seventy three thousand. Health insurance is provided through the employer plan, with the firm covering sixty percent of the premium. The firm offers a retirement plan, but student loan repayment takes priority for now.

Grace is one of the few Franklin County raised attorneys working rural legal aid in the region. The pay reflects a deliberate choice to serve the kind of community she came from rather than the kind of firm that recruited her.
