Why the rush pull

The custom pipeline plus the two extra Brownstone cranberry orange loaves (Dec 9) and the added Heritage rugelach (Dec 9 and Dec 11) put the Dec 2 and Dec 4 production mornings tight on butter, high-protein flour, and packaging. This is a one-time rush restock, not the standing weekly order.

Decision status

HOLD. Above Kim's $300 confirmation threshold. Sits in the hold queue until Kim signs off in writing. Not to be paid, not picked up, not charged to any card, and not funded from a personal account or the ballet-school (Gusto) books. Bakery money moves through QuickBooks under Kim's own controls; no bill is posted until she approves.

Fallback if declined

Scale down two Dec 8 custom orders and shift the Dec 4 lamination batch to lower yield rather than restocking early. That is a shoulder cost the right shoulder does not welcome, so the quote is worth surfacing, but it does not move until Kim says so.

Pickup logistics
