Author Representation Agreement

This Author Representation Agreement is entered into as of January 28, 2026 between Halloran Literary Agency, referred to as the Agency, and Dr. Jordan Brock, referred to as the Author. The Agency and the Author agree to the terms set out below for the representation of the literary work described in Article 1.

Author	Dr. Jordan Brock, 18 Brentmoor Park, Clayton, MO 63105
Agent of record	Rick Halloran, Halloran Literary Agency
Work represented	The Safety Equation, a nonfiction book
Effective date	January 28, 2026
Commission	15 percent of domestic proceeds
Target advance	30,000 to 50,000 dollars

Article 1. The Work

The Author engages the Agency to represent a nonfiction book with the working title The Safety Equation. The book argues that psychological safety is a measurable driver of business performance rather than a soft initiative, and it translates field research into practices that leaders can apply. The Author confirms that the work is original, that it does not infringe the rights of any third party, and that the Author holds full authority to enter into this agreement and to sell the rights described here.

The representation covers the full length manuscript, any proposal or sample chapters prepared to market the work, and reasonable revisions requested by an acquiring publisher. The working title may change by mutual consent without altering the terms of this agreement.

Article 2. Scope of Representation

The Author grants the Agency the exclusive right to represent the work for world rights, including primary publication, electronic, audio, and translation rights. The Agency will submit the proposal to a curated list of publishers, manage the resulting conversations, and negotiate any offer on the Author's behalf. The Agency will keep the Author informed of every submission and every response, and the Author retains final approval over any contract before it is signed.

The Agency may engage co-agents or sub-agents for translation and territory specific rights. Where a co-agent is used, the combined commission will not exceed the rates stated in Article 3, and the Agency remains the Author's single point of contact.

Article 3. Commission

In consideration of its services, the Agency will receive a commission of 15 percent of all domestic proceeds and 20 percent of proceeds derived through a co-agent for foreign and translation deals. Commission is calculated on gross amounts received before the Author's expenses and is payable at the time funds are collected by the Agency.

All publisher payments will be made to the Agency, which will deduct its commission and any approved expenses and remit the balance to the Author within ten business days of clearing. The Agency will provide a written accounting with each payment that shows the gross amount, the commission, any expenses, and the net amount paid to the Author.

Article 4. Advances and Royalties

The parties anticipate a publisher advance in the range of 30,000 to 50,000 dollars against royalties. The advance will be paid in the schedule negotiated with the publisher, commonly a portion on signing, a portion on delivery of an acceptable manuscript, and a portion on publication. Royalties earned after the advance has been recovered will flow through the Agency on the same accounting terms described in Article 3.

Milestone	Typical share of advance	Estimated timing
On signing of publisher contract	One third	Within 30 days of signing
On delivery and acceptance	One third	On manuscript acceptance
On publication	One third	On the publication date

Article 5. Term and Termination

This agreement begins on the effective date and continues until ended by either party with 30 days written notice. Termination does not affect any deal the Agency originated during the term. The Agency will continue to represent the work for any contract it placed and will remain entitled to its commission on income from that contract for the life of the contract, including option books that arise directly from it.

If the work has not been placed with a publisher within eighteen months of the effective date, either party may end the agreement without further obligation, and the Author is free to seek other representation.

Article 6. Author Warranties

The Author warrants that the work is original, that it contains nothing unlawful or defamatory, and that any third party material has been used with permission or under fair use. The Author agrees to cooperate in good faith with reasonable editorial and marketing requests and to deliver the manuscript on the schedule agreed with the publisher.

Article 7. Expenses

The Agency absorbs ordinary costs of doing business, including submissions and routine communication. Extraordinary costs such as bulk copying, legal review, or international shipping will be charged to the Author only with prior written approval, and no single expense above 200 dollars will be incurred without that approval.

Article 8. Independent Parties

The Agency acts as the Author's representative and not as an employee or partner. Nothing in this agreement creates a partnership or joint venture, and neither party may bind the other except as expressly stated here.

Article 9. Governing Terms

This agreement reflects the full understanding of the parties and replaces any prior discussion. It may be amended only in writing signed by both parties. If any provision is found unenforceable, the remaining provisions stay in effect.

Schedule A. Submission Plan

The Agency will pursue the work in two waves. The first wave targets editors known for serious nonfiction on management and behavioral science. The second wave broadens to imprints that publish practitioner books for a general business audience. The Agency will share the submission list with the Author before the first wave and will report each response as it arrives.

Wave	Focus	Timing
First	Editors in management and behavioral science	Weeks 1 to 4
Second	Practitioner and general business imprints	Weeks 5 to 10
Review	Offer review and negotiation	On any offer

Schedule B. Author Deliverables

To support the submission, the Author agrees to provide the materials below on the dates noted. These dates may shift by mutual consent if an early offer changes the schedule.

Deliverable	Target date
Final proposal and two sample chapters	January 28, 2026
Author platform and marketing summary	February 11, 2026
Full manuscript on contract	Per publisher schedule
