Re	Verdant Hollow, expression of interest

Dear Carlos,

It was a pleasure seeing Verdant Hollow at the showcase. The combat clarity and the art direction stood out to several people on our team, and the wishlist trajectory is encouraging.

This letter is a non-binding expression of interest. We would like to be considered as a publishing partner as you move toward Early Access. As a next step we would welcome the chance to play a current build at your convenience.

What stood out to us

- Readability-first combat that stays legible even in the busiest arena.
- A hand-drawn world with a consistent, memorable palette.
- A demo that converts curiosity into wishlists at a healthy rate.

How we typically work

When a partnership makes sense, Ember Gate contributes marketing reach, festival and platform relationships, and a funded launch runway, in exchange for a revenue share negotiated per title. We do not ask studios to give up creative control or their engine and source. None of that is being proposed here; it is only context so you know what a later conversation would cover.

About Ember Gate

Ember Gate is a boutique publisher focused on hand-crafted 2D and narrative games. Over the last four years we have helped a dozen small studios reach launch, with an emphasis on wishlisting, festival placement, and a steady press cadence rather than paid user acquisition. We keep our roster small on purpose so each title gets real attention.

A possible process, if you choose to explore it

Step	What happens	When
1	You send a private build key	at your convenience
2	We play and share structured feedback	about two weeks later
3	We talk goals, timeline, and only then terms	when you are ready
4	Nothing is signed without your counsel reviewing	-

To be clear, nothing here commits either side to terms. We have not proposed an advance, a revenue share, or a marketing commitment, and we would want to talk all of that through properly once you have decided you want to explore a deal at all. We know Pixel North has also shown interest, and we respect that you will weigh your options.

Whenever you are ready, we would love to keep the conversation going.

Warm regards,

Sam Reeves

Note (Carlos, internal): non-binding only, no terms on the table. First contact on any deal goes out under me, not the assistant. Do not send the build or design docs without sign-off.
