

Finca Miles

Single-estate extra-virgin olive oil - Baena, Subbetica, Andalusia

Two generations on one hillside

Finca Miles is a 35-hectare family olive estate in the Subbetica hills south of Baena, in the Cordoba olive country. The family has farmed this land for two generations. We grow principally Picual, the great Andalusian variety, with some milder Hojiblanca, and we press our own oil. The estate is small on purpose: we would rather press a smaller harvest well than a larger one adequately.

The oil

Our premium oil is an early-harvest, cold-extracted Picual - green and aromatic, with a clean bitterness and a peppery finish that lingers. It is the oil of this place: high in polyphenols, robust enough for a grilled vegetable or a piece of fish, fine enough to finish a plate with a few drops. Every premium lot is traceable to its parcel and its pressing.

Estate	35 ha, Subbetica	Polyphenols	612 mg/kg
Varieties	Picual, Hojiblanca	Production	~11,812 L / year
Style	early harvest, robust	Premium	~40% single-estate
Panel score	86.5 / 100	Formats	750ml / 500ml / 250ml

The grove through the year

- Winter - pruning the trees and sowing cover crops between the rows.
- May - the olive blossom, whose scent carries across the grove.
- Summer - the long, still heat; trapping and watching for the fruit fly.
- November to January - the harvest, and the first green oil of the year coming through the press.

Grown with care

We are converting our east grove to certified organic (certified from spring 2027) and modernizing irrigation to precision drip to use less water. We cover-crop, compost, and manage pests by monitoring rather than the calendar. The grove is alive with birds - the goldfinch, the hoopoe, the bee-eater in passage - and we farm so it stays that way.

Visit the estate

- Tastings and grove walks in the tasting room and among the trees.
- Press-house tours during the November-January harvest.
- Find us at the Baena and Cordoba markets and at the Jaen Olive Oil Harvest Fair.
- A direct welcome - the estate is family-run and we host personally.

From our table

The estate kitchen draws on two countries. Our oil sits as easily beside Andalusian salmorejo and torn bread as beside the Korean dishes of the family table. Good oil belongs everywhere there is good food; we are happy when ours crosses borders, on the plate and in the bottle.

Buying and partnership

- Single-estate bottles and tins through the tasting room, markets and online.
- Premium allocations for specialty retailers and importers in Spain, Germany and the UK.
- A Certificate of Analysis with every premium lot.
- Enquiries handled directly by the estate - we keep it personal.

Contact

Finca Miles - Baena, Cordoba, Andalusia. The estate handles enquiries directly and is glad to arrange a visit to the grove and the press house in the Subbetica hills.

Why single-estate matters

Most olive oil is blended from many sources. Single-estate means every bottle comes from one family's trees on one hillside, pressed by the people who grew it. You can taste the place, the variety and the harvest in the glass - and trace any bottle back to the parcel and the day it was pressed.

The range

Product	Format	Character
Premium Picual	750 ml glass	early harvest, robust, peppery
Picual tin	500 ml tin	everyday premium, export-friendly
Gift tin	250 ml	for gifting and tasting
Hojiblanca	500 ml	milder, rounder, for delicate dishes

A note on quality

- Early harvest, picked green for aroma and polyphenols.
- Milled within a day of picking; cold extraction.
- Accredited Certificate of Analysis on premium lots (flagship panel 86.5/100).
- Stored cool and dark; best enjoyed within the year.

Tasting at the estate

Come and taste at the source. We pour the season's oils in the tasting room, walk the grove, and - in harvest - open the press house so you can see and smell the first green oil of the year coming through. We host personally; this is a family estate, not a factory.

Finca Miles - single-estate olive oil - Min Miles Park.